

I am a junior at Texas A&M. College has been quite an experience for me and not all good. Coming home to an empty apartment after a day of tests that didn't go my way was becoming my normal. I volunteered at Adopt-a-thon not thinking I would find my new housemate. I walked into the cat room and in the back was this little adorable cat that stared right at me. When I approached her she came right up to the front of the cage. After a few minutes she laid her paw on my hand and put her head down on my arm. At that moment I knew she had chosen me. She had shown me the love and attention I was desperate to give and receive. She came home on Tuesday April 14th. These past few days have been the best days of my college career.

Coming home to Khaleesi has meant the world to me. She depends on me for food, shelter and attention but those things are nothing compared to the emotional comfort I get from her cuddles and purrs. She is so loved already and I can't wait for the many more years we have. i can't thank Aggieland Humane Society enough for being Khaleesi and I together.
