

Everyday I look into my baby Wally's eyes and tell him how thankful I am to have him in my life. He is the most grateful, attentive, and precious dog. I had been contemplating adopting a small low maintenance dog who would fit in well with my cats and small living space. Upon going to the shelter to meet a different dog, I saw sweet, calm Wally (formerly know as Taco). He has a runny nose and my heart melted for him because he seemed perfect for me and I wanted to get him healthy. He had been in the shelter for a long time and was only $12, so I couldn't resist...it just felt right within my heart.

Needless to say, after medicine and time, Wally is healthy, happy, and full of energy! He absolutely LOVES my cats, and they LOVE him. I can't imagine a more perfect fit to our little pet family. Wally burrows under our covers and curls up against our legs. It is so entertaining to watch him find the perfect spot to sleep and also to watch him play with my cats. He will take one end of a shoestring and run with it while my cats are chasing after the other end. It's hilarious. He also likes to lick and snuggle up to my cats. I feel as though he is just another cat most of the time.

I love and adore my animals and honestly cannot imagine a life without them. They are amazing, smart creatures who love you unconditionally and bring only smiles to your face. I am forever grateful that I helped theshelter by saving a life, and that they in turn helped by giving me Wally who has made my life complete.
