

I visited Zoe and her sisters about three months ago at Aggieland Humane Society. Zoe had an underbite that made her tongue stick out and the sweetest eyes but didn't seem to want the attention or company of people. Once out of her kennel she was skiddish and preferred to be by herself to just sniff around. Something about her sweet and quiet demeanor made me want to show her that she could trust, love, and have fun with people. Zoe is now a happy, playful, funny girl who loves long walks, playing tag with her pup friends, and morning snuggles. She has come out of her shell and is starting to trust other people like she trusts me. I am so thankful to Aggieland Humane Society for letting me adopt little "Ducky" and giving us both the opportunity to fall in love!
